

Eastbourne Stars Aim For 2012

Eastbourne tennis prodigy Matt Golledge, one of the county's most promising talents, is hoping to make his way to the London Olympics.

The big hitting teenager is developing his skills with Global Tennis, a sport development company spearheaded by Gary Marlow. Global Tennis aims to get as many people from the tennis-mad town of Eastbourne onto a court as the country searches for that elusive Wimbledon winner.

Since joining Global Tennis, Matt has risen to 11th in Sussex at under 16's level, climbing from 26th this time last year. He is currently in the top ten players at under 18 level, giving all at Global Tennis reason to be excited.

New to the Global Tennis initiative is Jessica Head, 11, who is showing tremendous potential as one of the brightest prospects in the area.

Global Tennis, with its moto 'Be Inclusive, Be Involved' perfect the mental and physical side of the game so that all its players can reach the top. Gary works from a number of tennis sights across Eastbourne including Devonshire Park, allowing players to grace the same courts as Martina Navratilova and Anastasia Myskina, former winners of the Hastings Direct Championships.

Tecnifibre, a leading racket sports provider, supports Global Tennis as they strive to lead to way in promotion and implementation of high quality sports programmes.

Harry from Tecnifibre said, "Tecnifibre is committed to supporting tennis at all levels and is proud to be associated with Global Tennis and their initiatives in the development of Grass Roots tennis in Eastbourne".

You can find out more about Global Tennis at www.globaltennis.co.uk and Tecnifibre goods at www.gtpro.co.uk

Notes for editors:

Photo opportunities please contact
Gary Marlow
01403730444
07940489257